

Maria Gonzalez Lopez is a non-traditional student in Santa Ana College's Child Development Associates degree program with plans to continue her studies at California State University – Fullerton. Her passion is to work as a bilingual preschool special needs teacher and to work with Spanish speaking parents to assist them in navigating the complexities of school systems and what services are available for their children. Maria is a member of Club Apple, Santa Ana's future teachers club as well as CABE, the California Association for Bilingual Education. Maria used her scholarship to cover school necessities.

“Thank you for helping me, this is an opportunity for me to continue with my studies and dreams to become a future educator. Thank you everyone that makes this possible.”
